

Community Project People Will Walk For Hunger Funds

Dansville's ecumenical community will host the second annual CROP Walk Sunday, Oct. 16, beginning at 1 p.m.

The CROP Hunger Walk will involve people of all ages and denominations caring, sharing and working together to raise funds for those in need, sponsors point out. Participants find sponsors who agree to give a certain amount based on the six miles walked in the project.

Of the total amount raised through the CROP event, 25 percent will be retained for domestic hunger programs in the community.

Walkers of all ages will leave Central Park and go up Main Street to Gibson and then turn on Route 36 to Jefferson Street. From here, the line will go to Ossian, Dock, Franklin and into the township on Zerk Road. Walkers will then return to Main, coming back into the village and go to the park where they started.

Rest stops for walkers will be established along the route and refreshments will be provided in the park upon completion of the event.

Those interested in participating may obtain a sponsor sheet at the Presbyterian Church, St. Paul's Lutheran Church or at the Clara Barton Red Cross Chapter House. Questions may be directed to Rev. Paul Shoop at St. Paul's Church, phone 335-5260.

Uncle Dan Writes

Dear Mister Editor:

A new service called the Corporate Interviewing Network looks like another idea whose time has come in the world of big business. You might think it takes a little more humanity out of man, but when you give it some thought you realize that a country ready for microwave meals, shopping by television and drive-in traffic court can handle this little time saver.

What CIN says it does is help big outfits cut travel and time for busy people that hire people for big jobs. The network videotapes everybody that applies for a job doing the same under the same conditions. CIN says this helps the applicants by giving all of them an even shot, and it helps the company by letting the personnel manager view the tapes and use the same standard in picking the person he wants.

The network works the other way too. Say a young feller wants to shop around for the best offer. Instead of sending out written reports on what he'd done and wants to do he hires CIN to make him videotapes to send to the personnel people. The new approach gets attention and results and saves time for everybody.

I mentioned this item during the session at the country store Saturday night, and Ed Doolittle said it looked to him like another case of life imitating technology. What big banks, big law firms, big insurance companies and big everything want, Ed said, is all their big people acting, looking, talking and thinking like they come out of the same cookie cutter.

Practical speaking, went on Ed, this kind of assembly line operation does what it's supposed to do, but some folks are asking is what it does what ought to be done. For instant, Ed said, schools are saying standard tests are letting good people fall through the cracks. They want colleges to move farther from the Scholastic Aptitude Test and closer to the students as human beings.

Clem Webster said he had heard of a book called "Time Wars" where a feller named Jerry Rifkin makes that same case. He says the faster we learn to do things the more things we come up with to do, so we keep falling behind. If that's hard to figure, Clem said, Rifkin goes on to say the more time we save the less time we got to save. He says the civilized world is hooked on the clock, and we'll keep pushing until we self-destruct because we'll never be satisfied with how efficient we are.

Before the discussion got complete out of hand, Josh Clodhopper, that does more listening than talking, broke in to say the world ain't ready to be loaded in the handbasket yet. He said he has been studying his almanacs recent, and he sees where this old earth is on a warming trend. A report from a recent science seminar says the world is going to warm up 10 degrees by the 22nd century, and this will mean more food can be raised in more places longer.

Josh said he didn't check on whether the degrees was fairer-hite or the new kind we're supposed to learn how to use. For his money, Josh allowed, it ain't all that important if the world will be 10 degrees hotter or colder by the 22nd century. The good news, he said, is that there will be a world in the 22nd century.

Yours truly,
Uncle Dan

Obituaries

DR. GEORGE SHERA JR.

Dr. George W. Shera Jr., 65, of Highland Ave., a longtime Dansville dentist, died Friday (Sept. 25, 1987) in Noyes Memorial Hospital.

The son of Dr. and Mrs. George W. Shera of New York City, he was a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania School of Dentistry and established his Dansville practice in 1957. He was a first lieutenant in the Army Air Force during World War II and piloted B-17 bombers.

Dr. Shera was a member of the Dansville Presbyterian Church, Daniel Goho American Legion Post, Dansville Lions Club, Protectives Fire Co., the Genesee Warplanes Museum organization and the American Dental Association.

CHARLES LEWIS SNYDER

Charles Lewis Snyder, 101, of Pine Bluff, Ark., a retired grocer, died Monday (Sept. 21, 1987) at the Jefferson Regional Medical Center in Pine Bluff.

Born June 5, 1886, in Canaseraga, he was a son of H. Seymour and Julia Root Snyder. He grew up on his grandfather's farm and attended Canaseraga High School. He later owned and operated a hardware store in Canaseraga.

On June 16, 1909, he married Daisy Glover in Springwater, where he operated a retail grocery business. Mrs. Snyder died in 1965. Mr. Snyder moved his family to Pamona, Fla. in 1925 and then of Ocala, Fla., where his children attended high school.

During World War II, he helped build wooden ships in Miami for use in anti-submarine patrol. After the war, he was a cabinet-maker. He married Nina Gilbert, widow of John Gilbert of Canaseraga, on Feb. 15, 1968, in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. She died in May of 1974 and in October of that year he moved to Pine Bluff to live with his daughter and son-in-law, Gerry and James Leslie.

He was a member of First Presbyterian Church and Retired Senior Volunteer Program and was a Mason.

Other survivors include a son, A. Dayton Snyder of Miami; a stepson Ezra Gilbert of Canaseraga; another daughter, Doleen Fausett of Oklawaha, Fla., a stepdaughter, Grace Richards of Dansville, seven grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren. He is also survived by several nieces and nephews in and around the Canaseraga area.

Memorial services were held in the First Presbyterian Church, Pine Bluff Sept. 23 with the burial Sept. 25 in Miami, Fla. Officiating was Dr. Lawrence A. Wood of the First Presbyterian Church of Miami.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Cemetery Fund, and made payable to Mrs. James W. Leslie, 608 West 20th Ave., Pine Bluff, Ark. 71601 or to H. Ross Glover, 7 Van Campen St. Dansville.
